Republican Union State Convention.

A Republican Union State Convention will be held at the Capitol in the city of Madison, at 12 o'clock M.

WEDNESDAY, THE 10TH DAY OF AUGUST NEXT, to nominate candidates for state officers to be chosen at the general election in November, and to take such other action as the public welfare shall seem to demand.

The chief public questions now before the country are those relating to the present war, and the proper method of dealing with the rebellion. There is no party by which can incur substantially in opinion on these subjects, nor will not act together politically, whatever may have been their former differences. We therefore cordially invite all citizens to unite in the election of delegates to the state convention aforesaid who approve of the following propositions:

That the Union be preserved in its integrity;

That the constitution and laws of the United States be enforced throughout the whole national domain;

That the rebellion be suppressed, not by compromise or on concessions to traitors, but by the sword, whose agency they have themselves furnished;

That the national administration should be heartily and generously supported, in its efforts to put down the rebellion.

Each state and assembly district will be entitled to two delegates in a state convention.

The central committee recommended to the district committees that the convention for the election of delegates be held as early as Saturday, the 8th day of August.

A Copperhead Judge.

John H. McCunn, the beauty of a New York judge who is discharging the New York rioters on writs of habeas corpus and straw bail, delivered an address on the 4th of July last to the Young Men's Irish Association of Brooklyn. After speaking approvingly of "our southern brethren" who are in arms against the government, he went on to say:—

"I mean what I say, and I am ready to abide the responsibility. (Innumerable applause.) I say this is an ugly, partisan war. (That's the talk.) This is the gloomiest Fourth of July that this country has ever witnessed. Two years since (March the 16th, 1861,) I found published the southern constitution. Have you read it? If you have not, read it. It is some very important and some very proper amendments. (The Judge then read the amendments.)"

The "Hon." Judge seems to run his court on the same principle upon which he made his speech—i. e. for the benefit of the southern confederacy, and to have a far greater affection for the "southern constitution" than the one under which he holds his office and has sworn to support.

Prior to this performance, he had declared the conscription law unconstitutional, and prior to his election as judge he had been sent home by General McClellan from the command of a regiment in the army of the Potomac, with an intimation that if he ever returned he would be hung.

Is it all strange that New York city is a by-word and reproach to every decent citizen when such men as this traitor judge is permitted to live in it and exercise judicial functions? Five or six feet of twisted hemp would appropriately adorn his rapacious neck.

RESPONSIBILITY OF THE NEW YORK MOB.—The Chicago Post, one of the better class of democratic papers, says:

"Who is responsible for this mob? Every intelligent mind will acquit the poor, foolish and misguided men who were the active operators in this disgraceful and shocking tragedy, of being the originators of any individual or organized resistance to the laws of the country. If let alone, there would have been no resistance, no mob, no bloodshed, no diabolical proceeding, beyond such regrets and anxieties as a conspiracy must inevitably produce. The whole blame, responsibility and criminality of the whole affair should rest upon those demagogues, led by Fernando Wood, who for months have been educating the thoughts of men and women of New York that this war was an illegal and unauthorized proceeding; that being such, no man was under obligation to serve in the army, any effort to compel him was an illegal attempt to deprive him of his rights, while, by law human and divine, should be repelled by force adequate to repel the threatened injury. In the free and unbridled exercise of free speech, these demagogues have wantonly, cruelly, brutally and cowardly, caught these poor, misguided men that it was a duty they owed to themselves and families to resist and defeat the conscription law. Was Fernando Wood, or Ben Wood, or Blanckman, or McCunn, in these riots, battling alongside of the men whom they had induced to this folly? Not one of them. They were not there. They urged these men on to crime, but took pains to keep out of it themselves."

It is very true that the brutal, deluded actors in the New York mob were not its originators, but the crime of participation was theirs, and the punishment fall upon them. An almost universal feature in riotous proceedings is that the authors and instigators escape, while the consequences fall upon their deluded victims. The "friends" of a conspirator who lose their lives or suffer a long term of imprisonment as the penalty for their adherence to the fortunes or misfortunes of the designs of the cowardly sneak who shouts them on while he himself keeps in a safe retreat, can find little consolation in the fact that they incur all the hazards and none of the benefits of their lawless conduct.

Mrs. Nix answers "A Union Man," Dear Gazette:—As former Nix, who is my old man, is too busy in his harvest field to answer "A Union Man," I have concluded to try it myself. Says I, Nix here is that "Union Man" after you with a sharp stick, ain't you going to answer him? Says he no, my wheat must be cut and the nights are too short and I am too tired. Well then, says I, if you won't I will. Says he, do, its just the right kind of a job for a woman. Well, says I, what shall I say? Says he, say what you think proper. So I went at it, Messrs. Editors, and here is what I have written:

I have heard my old man, that's farmer Nix, say, time and again, that honesty in politics is just as good policy as honesty in anything else, and that to lie and cheat and make false statements, and log roll, and lay pipe, and vote double and all that sort of thing, to get men nominated that the people don't want, is just as bad as using false weights or obtaining goods under false pretences, and that the former would just as certainly ruin the men or the party that practiced it, and bring them to shame and disgrace, as the latter and was just as great a crime in the sight of Divine Justice. My old man reads a great deal, and he says he is sustained in this both by reading and observation, by sacred as well as profane history.

Fresh honors crown the loyal troops. So fully had their character for bravery and reliance been established, that in the recent assault upon Fort Wagner, the 5th Massachusetts were allowed to lead our veteran troops, nor did they (to their honor be it said) refuse either lead or their support.

On forming them into line Gen. Strong, who had by his soldierly and kind bearing toward them secured their confidence, raising his stentorian voice, cried out, "Is there a man here who thinks himself unable to sleep in that fort to-night?" The earth rang with the thunder of their "No!" Turning to their color-bearer, he said: "Is there any man to take his place if this brave color bearer should fall?" With lifting of hands, and leaping, and almost yelling, all through the enthusiastic ranks, came the response, "Yes! Yes!"

GER. STRONG'S TESTIMONY.

From Gen. Strong himself, as he lay in the hospital four days afterward, suffering from his ghastly wound, I learned that these men had "had no sleep for three nights, no food since morning, and had marched several miles." Under cover of darkness they stormed the fort, facing a stream of fire, faltering not till the ranks were broken by shot and shell, and in all these severe tests, which would have tried even veteran troops, "they fully met my expectations," said the general, "for many of them were killed, wounded or captured on the walls of the fort. No man broke till fired upon."

THE SUPPORT OF THE COLORED REGIMENT.

The 6th Connecticut, who had honored themselves at Jacksonville, co-operating with colored troops, supported the 54th in the assault. Several of the officers lying in the hospital confirm the testimony of Gen. Strong. The regiment went in 700 strong, and brought off only 360 sound men. Of 17 officers, only three came out unbroken. The number of killed I have not learned. About 200 are now lying in our hospitals. Some who had prophesied that the colored man would not stand fire, but had fully fledged in his favor, still contended that ghastly wounds and sufferings with slaughter and death of comrades, would quench all their love of freedom and soldiering, and silence the boasts of their friends.

WOUNDED COLORED SOLDIERS IN HOSPITAL.

On the second and fourth days after the fight, I passed through nearly all the wards of the hospital. On the second day a very large proportion of their wounds had not been dressed, and of course they were very painful. Some lay with shattered legs or arms, or both; others with limbs amputated. Rebel bullets, grape, shells and bayonets have made sad havoc.

Standing amidst a large number, I said: "Well boys, this was not a part of the programme, was it?" "Oh, yes, indeed, we expected to take all that comes," said one. Others said, "Thank God, we went in to live or die."

If out of it and home how many would enlist again? With brightened faces and some raising of even wounded arms or hands, all said, "Oh, yes, yes." Some shouted out, "Oh, never give it up till the last rebel is dead," or "the last brother breaks his chains," or "if all our people get their freedom, we can afford to die."

Frank Myers, from Ohio, whose arm was badly shattered by a shell, said, "Oh, I thank God so much for the privilege; I went in to live or die as he pleased." He stood right under the uplifted sword of their brave Colonel Shaw, on the very top of the parapet, as he cried, "Rush on, boys!" and then suddenly fell, quickly followed by Myers himself.

No man can pass among those sufferers, so patient, so cheerful, bear them express their desire for a speedy recovery, first and only that they may (the almost universal expression) "try it over again;" also, their firm conviction that they are soldiers for Jesus, to help on this war of freedom for all the oppressed, and not be inspired with the desperate abhorrence of slavery and unquenchable desire for the freedom of their race. I have seen much to admire in them as servants, laborers in the field; as soldiers, in camp, on the battle field, but never so much in all these relations that is as truly manly, heroic and sublime as exhibited in the furnace fires of war.

NEGO SYMPATHY.

The sympathy and kind affection of the colored people are unmeasured. Yesterday Peter, from a plantation seven miles distant, calling on General Saxon, said:

"General, I brought a load of corn from our people for de sagers in de hospital. Some gives two ears, some four, some more, as deaf as bat. May de poor wounded sagers have it?" "Yes, yes; I thank them for it," said the general. Men, women and children, by the hundred, have turned ministering angels to their suffering benefactors, as the baskets of corn, figs, melons, pies, cakes, bottles of coffee, soup, and numberless other tokens of sympathy clearly evince.

We find in the correspondence of the Philadelphia Inquirer the following incidents of the attack upon the rebel fort:

BANDEROUS TREATMENT OF A BLACK SOLDIER BY THE REBELS.

One of the colored soldiers who had faithfully stood at his post, and refused to fall back when the rebels drove in our pickets, was afterward brought into our lines. The rebels, not content with having murdered him, had cut both his ears off and scalped him. As his comrades looked upon this hideous sight they grit their teeth and swore never to take another prisoner; and I can assure you that the rebels will find that the 54th will retaliate in this case without waiting for special or general orders.

A NEGRO SOLDIER CAPTURES A REBEL.

One laughable incident connected with this engagement is as follows: After the rebels had retreated, a colored sergeant belonging to the 5th Massachusetts, and very stout, was seen coming in with a secess prisoner. The rebel was one of those tall specimens of the chivalry who seem to have been originally intended for astronomical observations, while his captor was a stout negro who could with ease have walked between the legs of his prize. It was a ludicrous sight—the little contraband, with expanding eyes, large mouth, ivory glistening, lugging his own arms and those of his prisoners, and beside him was a long haired, sunken-jawed, yellow-faced specimen of southern vegetation, bumbly following his enterprising colored brother.

If Vandalligham is such a fast friend of the Union, and such a formidable enemy of the sham confederacy, as his backers claim, why didn't the rebels—having got him in their clutches—hold him? If his mission is really to save the republic, how is that those who are sworn to destroy it allow him to go at large? Why did they permit such a prize to escape?

Cairo, Aug. 2.

The steamer Sultana, from Vicksburg, has just arrived. She brought a large number of furloughed soldiers. The steamer was fired into by rebel guerrillas at Corinth, just below Memphis.

Now, this is just what Nix thinks will be done this year, and I think so too. I can't help but think it a sham for such men as Judge Lewis to countenance this kind of thing. How would be like to be above aside in this regard? It is not,

Mrs. Nix answers "A Union Man."

Dear Gazette:—At former Nix, who is my old man, is too busy in his harvest field to answer "A Union Man," I have concluded to try it myself. Says I, Nix here is that "Union Man" after you with a sharp stick, ain't you going to answer him? Says he no, my wheat must be cut and the nights are too short and I am too tired. Well then, says I, if you won't I will. Says he, do, its just the right kind of a job for a woman. Well, says I, what shall I say? Says he, say what you think proper. So I went at it, Messrs. Editors, and here is what I have written:

New Catholic Church.—The walls of the new Catholic church are up sufficiently to show the general design of the exterior architecture, and give some idea of its general appearance when completed. It is building upon the site of the old church, and when finished will be the largest and best church edifice in the city, alike an ornament to the city and a credit to the society which has constructed it.

The Regular Meeting of Washington Engine No. 3, will be held in their hall this evening at 8 o'clock.

M. H. CURTIS, Foreman.

Wx. Board. Secretary.

Enrollment for the Draft.—The following is the enrollment for the draft in the several towns and wards in Columbia county. It is an official abstract procured from the office of the provost marshal of this congressional district. Portage City Register.

It would have taken out one more line for the Register to have added that the abstract was furnished it by the Janesville Gazette.

Lost.—On Saturday morning last, a child's unfinished black silk Garibaldi, the same being braided with black silk braid. The finder will be suitably rewarded by leaving the same at this office.

Contraband School Books.—We inserted a notice on Saturday requesting that those who had second hand school books to spare, would leave them at Mr. Baker's shop, this morning, to be forwarded to the Fort Donelson school for contrabands. Before noon several hundred volumes, and numerous files of Sabbath school papers were brought in; quite enough, we should judge, to supply all the wants of this kind at that point, besides forming something of a library of miscellaneous books for the soldiers.

DOCTORS APPROVED.—Dr. J. H. BURKEMAN, Edgerton, Dukes county, Massachusetts, writes: "One of my family whose hair had been gray for a number of years, commenced using Mr. A. Atkin's World's Hair Bitter and Zylbatharum, without any fault in his hair, but contrary to expectation, the hair is now of a natural color, lively and beautiful."

Gold by druggists everywhere, Nos. 108 Greenwich street, New York, Boston, and Philadelphia.
